

For over a decade I enjoyed listening my favorite radio station off a FM translator in California. Last year we moved to an Idaho area not serviced by this life affirming, uplifting radio broadcaster. My family has missed it and I am happy to say we plan to move to a Colorado area that is served by this station via translator. I understand that your plan to allow LPFM stations bounce FM translators off the air in some areas. Please reconsider. There must be a compromise that would allow local broadcasting AND national and or regional broadcasting to serve their markets. America is about choice, no?
